The Pine Hill Mill Region

Wilcox County is located in the Southwestern Black Belt of Alabama. The Black Belt is named for the rich black soil that grew superior cotton during the 19th century. The collapse of the plantation economy during the Civil War left a legacy of “soul food” cooking, art fashioned from found materials, vast stretches of pristine river bottom land and, more recently, the Civil Rights Movement.

Wilcox County is also well-known for its numerous outdoor opportunities.

The rural landscape boasts an impressive selection of game animals, including whitetail deer, wild turkeys, feral hogs, squirrels, rabbits, ducks, doves and geese. The county has more miles of riverfront than any other county in Southwestern Alabama.

Roland Cooper State Park

Located six miles northeast of Camden, Roland Cooper State Park features spacious vacation cottages; a modern campground with bathhouse, laundry and camp store; and a scenic picnic area with tables, grills, pavilions and comfort station. Also, the park has a nine-hole golf course – 3,300 yards, par 36, with all the challenges and hazards of a championship course – as well as a driving range.

The Valliant Mill Region

Welcome to Kiamichi Country, Oklahoma’s ideal setting filled with sparkling lakes, rolling terrain, rich vegetation and picturesque towns. The Valliant Mill is centrally located to several larger neighboring communities, including Idabel, Hugo and Broken Bow, Oklahoma, and Paris, Texas. The City of Valliant has a population of 738 and covers .8 square miles. Founded in 1902 as a result of building the railroad, the land was originally designated as part of the Choctaw Nation. The Valliant Paper Mill was built in 1971 and was the largest paper mill in the world at the time.

The mild year-round climate affords the outdoor enthusiast the opportunity to take advantage of many activities. An annual rainfall of 50” and an average temperature of 60°F make for pleasant days with abundant sunshine.

Pine Creek Lake (Valliant) is conducive to good fish production. Principal fish species include crappie, white bass, largemouth bass, channel catfish, flathead catfish and various sunfish.
